Weekly report by email

The Curriculum Vitae is the most important way to present yourself to the business world. Promoting yourself on the web is a great way to introduce yourself to companies and procure job interviews. You will be able to advertise effectively throughout the web, via email, by sending out your P.A.C., introducing yourself and keeping track of the results of your promotion. On this page you can view all the details of each and every user who has accessed your CV through simple, clear graphs. A brief guide will help you interpret the data on the graph.

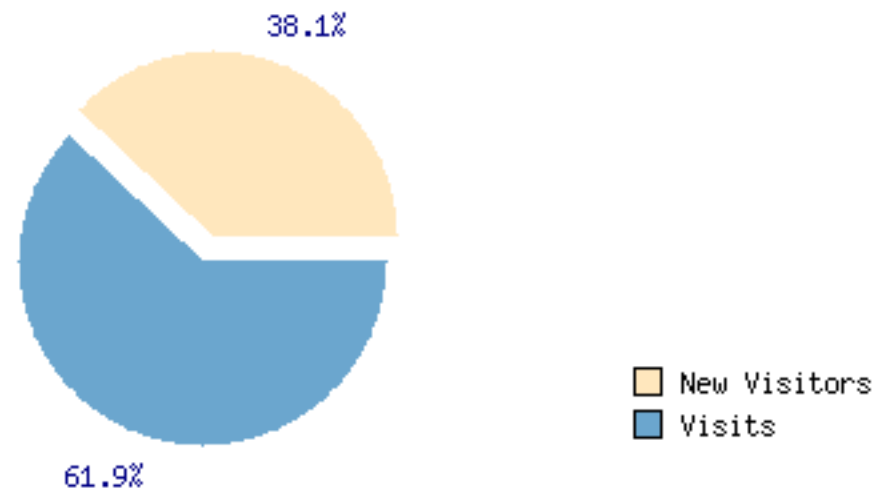

Statistics Overview

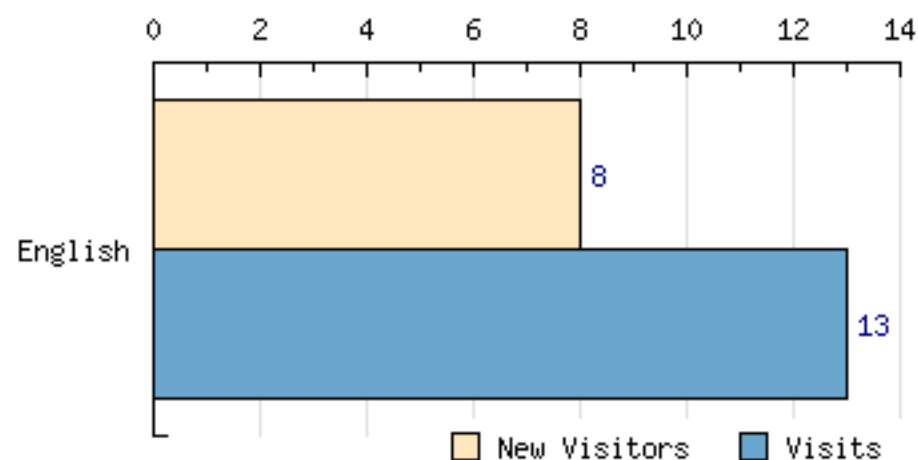

New Visitors: 8

Visits: 13

Help Information

This report displays an overview of the visits made to your Curriculum Vitae from the first day of its creation. In addition, the chart lets you follow the course of the promotion of your CV, showing the total number of visits and also the number of times that your CV has been viewed.

Displayed Versions

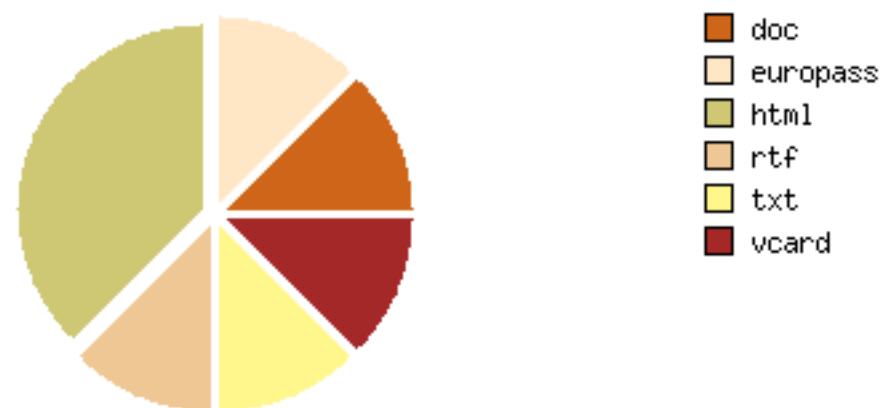

Help Information

Which version of your CV is viewed most often? In this section statistics show how many times your CV has been viewed in each language posted. Visitors access the default version. If your Curriculum Vitae was translated, visitors will be able to read it in other languages and your chances of being contacted will increase.

Downloaded Formats

Help Information

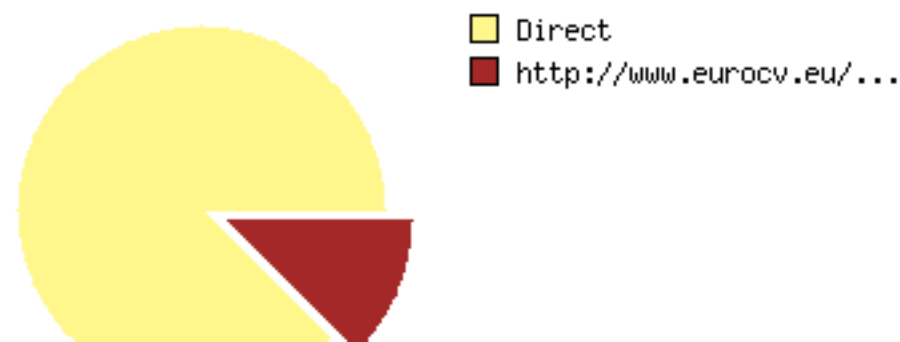

How many times has my CV been displayed in each format? Which format do visitors prefer to download? Publicizing your own Curriculum Vitae via email, blog, forum and mailing lists gives you the chance to continually promote yourself. This chart displays visitors' preference for format.

Visitors' Origin

Help Information

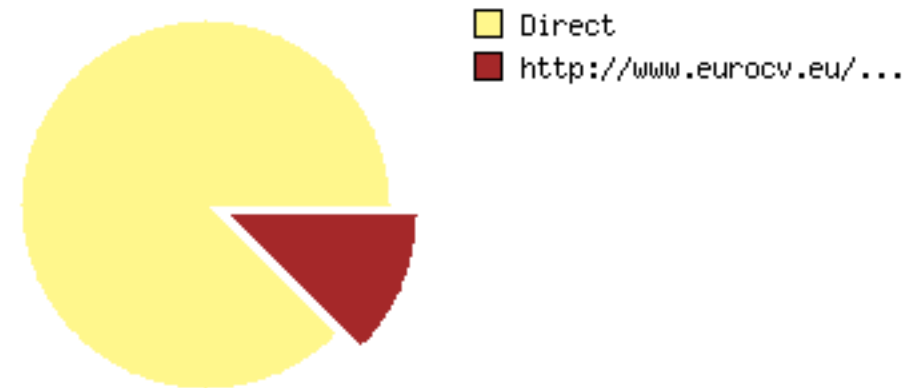

Which sites do your visitors come from? In this section you can check where your visitors come from and the number of times they have accessed your Curriculum Vitae. It is advisable both to promote yourself through direct post to a potential employer and to provide your own "Fastlink" on line, on your website.
